PAPERS ARE READ TO OSLER SOCIETY

C. N. Ramsay and Dr. C. F. Fluhman Are Speakers

Two excellent papers by C. N. Ramsay, and Dr. C. F. Fluhman, were read at the first meeting of the Osler Society, held on Tuesday night.

Ramsay's paper was entitled "Medicine in the Middle Ages." He discussed in a most interesting manner the status of the physician and surgeon at that time, and gave brief sketches of Henri de Mondeville and Guy de Chauliac, two leaders of medical thought at that time. He also graphically described the scourge of epidemic disease, especially the Black Death, which ravaged the civilized world, and discussed the introduction of lues into Europe. In summing up he showed the period had added very little to medical knowledge.

Dr. Fluhman's paper dealt with the life and times of Ambroise Pare, a noted surgeon of the French court and army of the sixteenth century. Ambroise Pare was court surgeon to four kings of France, and during his active career saw much service with the French army. It was in his capacity as an army surgeon that he made his two great contributions to surgical practice, namely, the treatment of gunshot wounds by emollients, in place of the barbarous practice of cauterizing them with boiling oil, and the use of the ligature to produce retraction in amputations. The ligature is in universal use for this purpose in all operations at the present day.

The Honorary President, Professor Whinnell, led in the discussion of the two papers, and after refreshments the meeting adjourned. From the members present, and the keen interest shown by the members in the subjects discussed, the society seems assured of a very successful year.

MONARCH REQUESTS UNIVERSITY CALENDAR

Fresh evidence of the world-wide renown of McGill has just been received. It is in the form of a request from His Majesty King Feisal, of Mesopotamia, for a copy of the calendar. This was dispatched to him yesterday by the Registrar.

Last summer Dr. R. A. McLean, former Assistant Professor of Classics, went on an archaeological expedition. He met King Feisal and the latter expressed great interest in McGill, especially in the Engineering Department.

This is the first time that a calendar has been sent to a monarch.

DISCUSSION ON POLITICS BY MR. KERR

Yesterday's Informal Talk Is Well Attended

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Speaker Is Editor of "The Round Table" Magazine

Mr. Philip Kerr was the speaker at an informal discussion on Politics, held yesterday afternoon in the New Medical Building. Mr. Kerr derives his intimate knowledge of European politics mainly through his previous connection with the British ex-Prime Minister Lloyd George. Mr. Kerr is the Editor of the Round Table Magazine, which is considered as one of the best treatises on modern politics. He announced to the gathering that he would answer any question relative to modern politics.

Prof. Williams, in introducing the speaker, mentioned his qualification as a speaker on the subject. The first question which was asked Mr. Kerr was a question which, in the opinion of most people, is very relevant to-day: Why is the Dardanelles considered so important in European Politics? Mr. Kerr, in the course of his answer, said: "The Turks, in closing the Dardanelles in the recent World War, lengthened the war by two years. This closing prevented Russia from getting supplies from the West, and as all its really important supplies come from Europe and surrounding territory, it was certainly a great handicap. This prevented the Russians from really being effective. At times the Russians had even fought without rifles. Had they had all their supplies then there might be a different story to tell. The easiness with which Germany was able to conquer Roumania is also attributable to this fact. The Dardanelles is the natural outlet and highway of all the Balkan states. If Turkey could regain control of the Dardanelles it would take quite some time to open it again. As long as the Turks own Constantinople they will busy themselves with international Politics instead of educating and building up the Turkish nation. If England can send ships up and down the Dardanelles then she will have a very strong hold on the Turks. This is what they need, that is, I mean, policing in the interest of the world, to maintain peace."

Mustapha Kemal has shown great moderation in his warfare. There is no doubt that with such a fanatical army, it is very hard to keep order, especially when in the flush of success, and he certainly has his hands full.

The more people who show a want of peace at any cost, give Mustapha Kemal a greater chance to wage a successful war, and he is perfectly aware of this. I would suggest an international policeman as the best means to prevent this.

TO HOLD SERVICE AT UNION SUNDAY

Dr. Thomas Eakin Will Deliver Sermon

The first University Church Service for this session will be held next Sunday in the Ball Room of the Union. The service will be conducted by Dr. D. J. Fraser, Principal of the Presbyterian College, and the sermon will be delivered by Dr. Thomas Eakin, Ph.D. Dr. Eakin is on the staff of the Presbyterian College, coming there last year from Toronto University. He is becoming very well known locally, having occupied pulpits in several city churches.

Sir Arthur Currie, Principal, will not be able to be present, as he will be out of town, but it is expected that some prominent member of the Faculty will read the lessons.

At the service there will be a student orchestra, and also a student choir.

Last session two University services were held, and it was felt by many students, that they should be held very frequently. At nearly every other Canadian University these services are held very often, and the good attendance at the two held last year here showed that they were popular with the student body. Next Sunday is being observed throughout the entire civilized world as a special day of prayer for Universities and other educational institutions, so it seems fitting that McGill should also hold a University Service.

The service will commence at 11 a.m.

STUDY OF THE CLASSICS WILL BE PROMOTED

Montreal Classical Club Organized Yesterday

DEAN LAING, PRES.

Many Local Schools and Colleges Interested

To the numerous liaisons already existing between McGill University and other institutions in the city of Montreal, an addition was made last night in the organization at the Edinburgh Cafe of the Montreal Classical Club. The organization committee consisted of Dean Laing, of McGill; Mr. T. B. Reith and Mrs. Wilson Irwin, of the Montreal High School; Mr. H. H. Worsfold, of the Westmount High School, and Mr. C. S. Fosbery, Principal of Lower Canada College.

The purpose of the organization is to promote the cause of classical studies in the Montreal district, and by means of papers, reports and round-table discussions to keep all the members of the organization in touch with the latest methods of teaching Latin and Greek as well as other phases of classical studies.

After presentation of the report of the organizing committee, which provided for the offices of President in the person of Dean Laing, Vice-President H. H. Worsfold, Secretary-Treasurer T. B. Reith, and an Executive Committee composed of Mrs. Wilson Irwin, Prof. Carruthers and Mr. McAuley, Mr. Worsfold presented an analysis of the recently published Report of the Committee appointed by the Prime Minister of Great Britain, on the position of the Classics in the Educational System of the United Kingdom. Mr. Worsfold's comment brought out clearly the points on which the committee based its conclusion that any decrease in classical studies would be fraught with grave danger to the soundness of education in the British Isles. The speaker emphasized the fact that the findings of the British Committee are in every way applicable.

MYSTICISM DISCUSSED AT LENGTH

Mysticism as an Element of Human Make-up

INTERESTING TALK

Writings of Early Mystics Difficult to Fathom

The Psychology of Mysticism, a subject which is especially interesting because of the new field of study it introduces in the study of Psychology, was ably discussed in a paper read by Mr. C. Quayle, M.A., B.Sc., at the meeting of the Psychological Society last night. Mysticism is an element which has played an important part in the psychic make-up of the human being ever since record has been kept of human activities. This is especially so in the case of ancient peoples. Mr. Quayle, a former lecturer at Cairo University, has thus had an opportunity of coming into contact with the element of mysticism which lingers more predominately in the psychical phase of the lives of the inhabitants of Northern Africa, whose civilization is still imbued with a great many of the characteristics of ancient peoples.

The tendency of the subject of mysticism to reach beyond the sphere of human understanding makes it very difficult to define. Such eminent scholars as Swinburne, Maeterlinck and Freud analyzed it; their views however do not entirely coincide and the phenomena connected with it still remain to be categorized among the experiences of man. Mysticism seems to be the grasping of the human mind for the realization of dominant desires and the blessing of a tangible connection with an Infinite Being. It is "a growth yet a consummation, the very essence of Eternity." "It is an intense emotional state."

The writings of the early mystics is very difficult to fathom, probably because of an inability to convey to others the underlying significance of mystic phenomena occurring to them. Their writings are consequently of no scientific value to the present study of Psychology. An interesting illustration of ancient writing on the subject occurs when a mystic portrays himself as having a dagger plunged into his breast just over the heart. In this position the dagger was moved around in its bloody sheath and the name of Jesus engraved on his heart. When he died the name was discovered as it had been written on his heart by the pointed end of the dagger. Another highly imaginary story is contained in a poem by William Blake called "The Crystal Cabinet." The mystic pictures himself as having been locked in this wonderful cabinet, and when back of the closed door sees and

PHILIP KERR TO LECTURE AT R.V.C.

Will Speak of War, and Its Prevention

To-day, at five o'clock, in the R.V.C. Convocation Hall, Philip H. Kerr, who has caused such favorable comment upon his various Talks on Politics, will be the honored guest of the Canadian Club of McGill, and will speak on War and its Prevention. This subject is in itself a very interesting topic, but with Mr. Kerr to take the very little dryness out of it, it should prove doubly so. His clear insight into Modern European politics, gained through association with the former British Prime Minister Lloyd George, as his Secretary, his power of concise and clear expression and directness of speech, make him a very interesting person to listen to. It was remarked yesterday, during the informal discussion over which he presided, that the manner in which Mr. Kerr grasped the possibilities of all sides of the question, and his answer in which he left no shade of doubt as to his real meaning, was remarkable. His speech recently before the Canadian Club of Montreal was closely listened to by the many prominent men of the city who attended. The question of War and its Prevention is a very modern question. There are many nations on the lookout to find a real preventative of future wars to-day, and some suggestions Mr. Kerr will give will enlighten many who are not in the inner circle of political happenings.

Sir Arthur Currie, Dean Laing and Dr. Stephen Leacock have announced their intention of attending this meeting.

MONTREAL, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1922

THE CANADIAN CLUB MEETING

Today's Canadian Club meeting and address by Philip Kerr merits the support of the entire student body. It is very encouraging to note that this organization, which in the past has on various occasions, justly or unjustly, been subjected to considerable criticism because of alleged apathy and failure to secure good speakers, is starting the 1922-23 season with a meeting at which the guest of honour is a speaker of Mr. Kerr's high standard.

The speaker for today has seen from the inside the operation of the greatest government in the world, and has been for some years intimately associated with one of the greatest of British statesmen, Mr. Lloyd-George. He therefore is in an extremely good position to deliver a most interesting address, and to give his hearers a more comprehensive idea of the present state of Europe than the most careful study of the daily newspapers can hope to do. The presence of an authority on British and European politics will be especially welcome today, the day after a British general election, brought about in no small degree by dissatisfaction at the method of handling the late developments in that ever-present European tangle, the Near East problem.

Mr. Kerr will therefore, we are sure, be welcomed by a large and representative McGill audience this afternoon.

The student body receives notification in today's issue of the "Daily" that it is expected to choose faculty representatives who will be expected to take office at the New Year, to sit on the Students' Council. When the undergraduates return after the Christmas holidays those at present representing the faculties will relinquish office to the men who will have been elected to take their places. Nominations will be received by the Secretary of the Council as late as the twenty-eighth of this month, thus affording ample time for consideration by the students of an election which entails, practically, the choice of half of the Council. Any prospective campaign managers would be well advised to get their plans under way at an early date; it will stimulate interest and permit of thorough estimation by those who are to vote.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Daily is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office—that they write upon ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER ONLY.

Engineering Building,
 Central Y.M.C.A.,
 Montreal,
 Nov. 15, 1922.

The Editor,
McGill Daily:

Sir—I am somewhat surprised and disappointed that none of those who commended me upon my letter of last Saturday (in which I discussed "Quips") should have seen fit to express their approbation through the medium of your column. So far, two responses have appeared, neither by any means sympathetic. In each of these, nothing new is added to the discussion, but in both cases the writers have resorted to the practice, of very questionable good taste, yet of all too frequent occurrence in newspaper correspondence, of heaping ridicule upon one's opponent's head. To be frank, I must confess that the temptation to reply in kind is strong. But upon consideration, it must occur to anyone that ridicule is the only weapon of the otherwise unarmed, and I feel that I will do much more to strengthen my position, at least in the minds of those who are willing to judge a case upon its merits, if I confine myself to a serious discussion of the points which strike me most forcibly.

It may be well at the outset to state that, contrary to the surmise of three of my correspondents, I have never appeared, masked or otherwise, in the column of "Quips." And I shall not adopt the smug attitude of the same three, who profess complete ignorance of the nature of the journal to which I have previously referred. Human nature is good and bad, and to study it one must study both sides.

It is known to most that the "Daily" finds its way into a considerable number of hands other than those of students. With several of these persons I have talked, and I may say that my first letter was primarily a result of these conversations, I found that in every case the impression of Quips was, to put it mildly, frankly unfavorable. And how could it be otherwise, since the casual reader has no means of judging the column otherwise than by its face value. To support this contention, may I reproduce a paragraph which appeared in "Quips" on November 9th. It runs as follows:

WHO

is the popular Rugby Manager who got "tanked" at the N. C. Hotel at St. Anne's last Wednesday?

AND

did he charge the price of the "Beer" up to the Rugby Club?

Now, sir, I do not know the gentleman in question, the paragraph may be capable of a perfectly innocent interpretation, and in fact, for all I know it may be humorous. But the point is this. What impression will this make in the minds of those who are not in a position to appreciate its doubtless innocent intent. The answer cannot be one of opinion, it is one of fact. I do not merely think, but I know the impression to be bad. You may ask, what has this to do with the "Daily," which is primarily the organ of the students? And I reply that the reputation of the University can be made or marred by such seemingly trivial incidents.

My second point is this. If such paragraphs are admitted indiscriminately to the column of "Quips," what is to prevent me or any one else from working off old scores by making contributions of an equally slurring and perhaps libelous character, and ensuring their publication by labelling them "humorous"?

I trust, sir, that you will pardon me if I unduly encroach upon your time. I am not in the habit of rushing headlong into print without a foundation of fact upon which to build my views. I hope that further commentators will recognize this, and will at least have the courtesy to grant that my position is sincere.

I am, Sir,

Yours truly,

WM. L. ROBERTSON.

"The play's the thing!" exclaimed Hamlet.
 "Yes," protested the manager of the company, "but it's too bad this little drama of yours had to be a tragedy. If you could cut out the killing this story of yours might make a first-rate bedroom farce."

The National Trade-mark

OLD silversmiths, in order to help people tell pure silver from cheaper imitations, marked the real thing "sterling."

In a like manner, manufacturers, who stand back of their wares, identify them with trade-marks that are your guarantee of quality. By advertising these trade-marks, they focus on their products the searchlight of attention.

Only good goods, fairly priced, can flourish in this light of publicity. For no merchandise and no business can thrive under the weight of public condemnation.

That is why a manufacturer, or a merchant, places the whole reputation of his business at stake every time he advertises. His goods must be as advertised.

So, in looking through this paper remember this: the man who spends his money to invite your consideration of his wares, backs up his belief in his goods and leaves the final decision to you.

It pays you to read the advertisements. It pays you to buy advertised products.

Advertising is your protection

THREE GAMES INTER-CLASS BASKETBALL

Very Small Turn-out to Support Teams

DAVIS STARRED

Commerce '25 Man Shows Promise of Fine Playing

Three games were decided yesterday afternoon and evening in the Inter-Class Basketball League. In the first game, Science '24 easily disposed of Arts '24, the final score standing at 26-8. The second game was the closest and most interesting; Med. '26 defeated their younger rivals, Med. '28, by 9-5, but the result was in doubt until the expiration of time. The last encounter soon developed into a walkover, and Comm. '25 succeeded in rolling up forty points against their opponents' eight. The details of the games are as follows:

SCIENCE '24 vs. ARTS '24.

This game showed clearly the advantages of speed and team work in basketball. It was on these factors that Science '24 defeated Arts '24. From the outset the superiority of the former team was evident. They outclassed their opponents in every department of play except possibly in shooting. Neither team was very proficient in this line. The Arts team seemed to be suffering chiefly from lack of practice. They have some good material.

In the first period the Science team had things practically their own way. They ran all around their opponents, and made eight goals to their opponents' zero. The defence of the Science team was noteworthy; when the Arts team got the ball they would pass it to within a yard or two of the goal, and then invariably lose it.

In the early part of the second period the Arts team rallied for a while. They changed their tactics, trying for the goal at long range. This mode of play proved more effective, as they managed to score four baskets. In the last few minutes of the game, however, the Science defence, which had shown signs of weakness, came back to their former proficiency to the sorrow of the Arts men. During this period the Science men made five goals. The final score was 26-8.

The game was very clean throughout, no fouls being recorded.

The line-up was:

Science '24.	Arts '24.

MED. '26 vs. MED. '28.

The play started out fast and seemed from one end of the floor to the other for several minutes, until '26 obtained a free shot and scored. They followed a second later by dropping in a long field goal; these points were made by Boucher and Miller respectively. '28 commenced to use better combination, but their efforts were at first futile. '26 changed their men quite frequently, thus keeping them at top speed, and they soon succeeded in scoring from the field once more. After this setback '28 brightened up, and their efforts were rewarded by two points from a well-placed shot. No further scoring took place before the half-time whistle blew. Score 5-2 in favor of '26.

Soon after changing over for the second half, Martin scored a pretty basket for '28, and the handful of supporters present had their hopes raised. But Boucher soon put '26 in the lead when he scored a field goal on a long pass. At this time, play speeded up, and some very swift and interesting play was seen. On a free shot, '28 drew up to within two points of their opponents; following this shot, several minutes elapsed before further score. However, with only a minute to go, and during a period of very hard playing, '26 put in the last basket. The final score read 9-5.

The teams lined up as follows:—

COMM. '25 vs. DENT. '25.

Soon after play started, Commerce broke into the scoring column, when Davis scored; but Dents. rallied, and Shorker evened up matters with a clever shot. Once the game got well under way, Commerce drew away from the "tooth artists" until by half-time the score was 18-4. Cummings scored two baskets in quick succession, and once again on a pass from Davis. Commerce's combination was practically perfect, and shows the practice that they have had. They outplayed Dents., and the work of Davis and Cummings gave them little chance to score, although Shorker got in two baskets before the end of the period. Towards the close of the first half both sides used substitutes, but Commerce had a larger number of men and used them to great effect. Half-time score 18-4.

Davis started scoring immediately, and his work throughout the second half was very telling. Shorker was the only Dent. who was able to penetrate the defence, and his shooting was accurate, resulting in two more baskets. Johnston, of Commerce, and Goldenberg, of Dentistry, accidentally collided, and were both a little the worse. Goldenberg sustained a slight cut over the eye, while Johnston may lose a tooth as a result of the impact. Before the end, the game developed into a walkover, Commerce scoring almost at will, and Davis finished the tally as the whistle blew. The final result was 40-8 for Commerce.

The work of Davis is worthy of mention. He scored 18 of his team's points, and proved himself very fast and accurate. He comes from Ottawa, and should find a place on one of the college teams. Cummings and Glickman were also good for Commerce, while Shorker was the outstanding man with Dents. The attendance at all three games was lamentable, and shows little interest in the work of the class teams.

The line-up was:

Commerce '25.	Dentistry '25.
Forwards.
Davis Shorker
Glickman Goldenberg

Cummings Muhlstock

1923 TRACK TEAM CAPTAIN ELECTED

Marcel Gaboury Succeeds "Cece" Hay

Marcel ("Hank") Gaboury, Intercollegiate champion pole vaulter, and winner of several events in the recently held Intercollegiate and University track meets, was unanimously elected as Captain of the 1923 track team at a meeting held last night after the taking of the Track and Harrier team pictures. Gaboury will succeed "Cece" Hay, this year's captain, who graduates next spring. He has been on the track team for several seasons now, and has shown excellent form in the pole vault, discus, and shot put, and is an excellent all round man. He holds the University pole vault record, breaking this year his own record mark set at the college meet last session.

Gaboury will be one of the very few of the "old guard" left next session, such stars as Cece Hay, Hammy Hamilton, Roland Legg and others graduating, so he will have a big task in leading a team on which there are sure to be several new and comparatively inexperienced men, but his unanimous election shows that the club is confident of his leading the team to another victory in 1923.

floats into realms of beauty that could only be compared to an ideal mental picture of Paradise. The thoughts of mystics were almost invariably directed toward a predominating, supreme, all-pervading and infinite power. Mysticism was and is, according to Mr. Quayle, aroused by religious or sexual emotions. "There is an imagery not spoken of much by psychologists, that is feeling imagery, the feeling of emotion with the attendance of consciousness of the cause of the feeling."

The varied experiences in mysticism of a certain lady teacher in Switzerland was told vividly by Mr. Quayle. This woman had a vivid imagination as well as a strong will. In her early years her father, a stern moralist, kept her in ignorance of the shortcomings of mankind. But at the age of seventeen her innocence was rudely disturbed. She discovered and learned another phase of life. There followed peculiar phenomena in her psychical life, at times her lower tendencies predominating, then her mystic tendencies gaining the upper hand. Five noticeable points in connection with her case are: As a child she had a vivid imagination and indulged a great deal in day dreaming; she loved her father passionately; she underwent a brutal initiation into worldly knowledge; she had a careful religious education; her later life seemed to be the result of the evolution of a mystic process.

Some discussion followed the address, Dr. Tait, Mr. De Silva and Mr. Levi adding some remarks to the discussion. The attendance numbered seventy-five or more, and speaks well for the progress of this society. It was announced that on December 20 two short papers will be read, one by H. F. Hall, president of the society, on Mental Tests; the other on the Psychology of Play, by the vice-president, Miss R. Contee, B.A.

McGILL MERMEN PLAY TONIGHT

Intermediates to Meet Lasalle at Central 'Y'

To-night, at 8.15, at the Central Y.M.C.A., the McGill Intermediate Water Polo team meets the LaSalle sextette. This game will be preceded by a match between the Y.M.C.A. intermediates and those of LaSalle.

Two weeks ago the Red and White won from LaSalle by a small margin, but since this time the Verdun men's team has been considerably strengthened, and McGill will have to work hard for victory.

Judging by the work-out held last Tuesday night McGill should be able to put up a stiff fight to-night.

Murphy, who is playing forward at this game has had no previous experience on a McGill team, but to judge by his work at practice he will be able to hold down this position satisfactorily.

McGill's line-up for to-night's game is as follows:
Goal—Jardine.
Defence—Phipps and Forsyth.
Centre—Vickerson.
Forwards—Moore and Murphy.

WESLEYANS BEAT CONGREGATIONALS

Score 2-0 Victory on Greasy Field

Slipping and sliding over the greasy expanse of the old campus yesterday morning, the Wesleyan soccer eleven kicked their way to a 2-0 victory over the Congregational footersquad, in a game that was rendered rather slow by the terrible condition of the field. Their victory was well earned, however, and they kept the play consistently at the Congo end of the field, save for short times during the game when the C. C. attacked. Johnson's sure and steady kicking was a great factor in the Wesleyan victory, as he was always sure of clearing the ball out of the goal area. Wesleyans scored one goal in the first period, when the ball rolled into the goal from a scrimmage in front of the post, and in the last few minutes of the second half they slammed another long kick through that gave Somerville little chance. The Congos tried hard to even up the score, but never seemed able to get going.

This morning the Wesleyans meet the Presbyterian team in the game that will decide the championship of the Intercollegiate Colleges football league. If the Wesleyans win or tie this game it means that they will have the championship. The game should prove to be an interesting exhibition of soccer.

ARTS FRESHMEN DEFEAT MED. '24

Arts Battery Does Excellent Work

By defeating Med. '24 to the tune of 17 to 12 the Arts '26 baseball aggregation scored their second victory of the season.

There was little to pick between the two teams. The pitching was good in both cases, though Spritzer had a slight edge in this line. Spritzer only walked one man throughout the whole game, while three free trips were yielded by Rankin. Both pitchers sent many men back to the bench by the strike-out route. Both teams fielded poorly. As an exhibition of loose fielding the sixth inning was outstanding. Arts' catcher, pitcher, shortstop and third baseman all attempted to get the same ball, the result was that four Meds. crossed the pan.

The men of both teams hit the ball pretty hard, but Arts placed their hits to better advantage. Over-confidence nearly lost the Arts men the game in the last inning. The fielding became absolutely slovenly, each one of Meds' 4 runs in this inning being obtained on an Arts' error.

It would be unfair to let the good work of Abramovitch, the Arts catcher, go by unmentioned. Both behind the bat and at the bat his work was exceptionally good.

The line-up was as follows:

Arts '26.	Med. '24.
Catcher.
Abramovitch Morris
Pitcher.
Spritzer Rankin
First Base.
Godine Zinck
Second Base.

DISCUSSION ON POLITICS BY MR. KERR

kind of a war. I was certainly with Lloyd George in his policy.

One reason Mustapha was so powerful was that he was regarded as the leader of Mohammedism against Christianity. The fear that Christian civilization will overwhelm Mohammed's followers has been the great cause of all Islam rallying to support Kemal.

If the Allies had said that the Turk was to be kept out of Europe, the Smyrna episode might have been passed over. It was impossible to make terms after the Turks had landed in Smyrna. The Turk's philosophy is "Might is Right, and believes that violence will secure what they want in every case."

Dr. Leacock, who was present, asked the next question, which puzzles many people even to-day. What is the cause of the French attitude in the whole affair?

"Kemal two years ago conducted a continual war against the French in Silesia. This war was very costly to the French. The French Parliament decided that such wars being so costly, should not re-occur in the future. This is the first reason. The second reason was that France, since the dissolving of the Anglo-American treaty which was to prevent Germany from attacking her, France has had to rely on her own army to protect herself against the Germans. Now France's population is not increasing very rapidly, which Germany's population is doing, and therefore France needs the support of her black army. Her black army is composed of Mohammedans to a great extent. A war with Turkey would be disastrous."

"What will do more to restore the general peace?"

"The settling of the Reparations issue will do more to bring back peace to the whole world. It is really the root of all the present trouble."

There must be some tribunal which is international, and which will settle all the world political troubles without exception. The present League of Nations, which was formed with the idea to do this is paralysed because of not having Russia, Germany and the United States. Until especially the United States joins this League of Nations, the general peace of the world will not be finally settled."

Dean Laing thanked Mr. Kerr and touched upon the great qualities the speaker showed as a speaker on politics. His really good insight, easiness of expression, conciseness, straight to the point method of talking made it a pleasure for the listener.

Prof. DuRoiure, in seconding the motion of thanks to the speaker, said that although because of his being French he did not agree with Mr. Kerr on some points, he admitted the fairness of his arguments.

Prof. Williams then reminded the gathering that Mr. Kerr would address the McGill Canadian Club at the R.V.C. to-day at five o'clock. His subject will be "War and its prevention."

MOTHER'S BREAK.

"What's the delay?" asked mother, coming to the front door?

"Pa says one of the cylinders is missing."

"Well, you children get to work and hunt for it or we'll never get off."

A HYMN OF HATE.

I hate my woolen underwear!
I'm mad enough to bawl!
It itches here, it itches there,
The darned itch seems to crawl!
And when I start to scratch somewhere
There ain't no place at all!

OUR VERSION.

We don't wear woolen underwear
A-drooping to the ground!
For prickly stuff we do not care—
No woolens! We'll be bound!
And though it's cold enough to freeze,
Good skating ice about our knees,
We'll still stick to our B.V.D.'s,
The whole long year around!

CASUAL CLARENCE.

He answers any question you like to put.
Ques.—How do you know this year is not a leap-year?
Ans.—'Cause it's going to be such a bad year for hops!

Any clerk can drive a pen, but a pen-cil's always lead.
Speaking of that B. W. & F. smoker, why is not an invitation extended to the Daily staff to give an exhibition of the deadly scissors hold?

Ques.—Kin a turnip wet your appetite?
Ans.—No, but a pumpkin!

Leaving a new shirt at the laundry is like sending your best girl to college—you'll never see it again.

A dollar used to do the family wash, but now it won't iron a shirt.

A handkerchief in the hand is worth two in the wash.

He used to come around and collect our laundry. The only thing he collects now is the money.

No wonder we haven't any sense when the laundryman has all our buttons.

He might be a "chink," but he knows how to grab the coin.

Why fret and scheme to design a gold brick machine, or a moonshine still. Buy a tub and a clothesline.

He might not be able to speak English, but he can make change for five "schekels."

The laundryman has some line.

You're collar's clean, but it looks like the last rose of summer.

He never tells a story, but, Oh, Boy! he knows how to use the lye.

steps has he taken to remedy the difficulty?

WHO
is the First Year man in Law, who has spent four years at McGill already, who replied, when the subject of an early morning lecture was mentioned to him, "Oh, obligations—is that what it was?"

AND
is the Science Sophomore, of hockey fame, recognising the Eastern Townships as his home, who, it is alleged, spent last Sunday afternoon in an attempt to divide his attentions equitably between the R. V. C. and the Convent?

AND
was he successful?

WHO
is the doughty exponent of cod fishing off the eastern Maritime coast, completing his last year in the B.Sc. course, who was discovered last Sunday vainly endeavoring to explain the intricacies of the art to an interested audience of two?

WHY
was it thought "perfectly killing?"

WHAT
was the cause of the recent "beaver" demonstration in the Arts Building?

WHO
is the Med. senior teaching physiology to a class of one nurse at a local hospital? While the Track Team picture was being taken at Notman's yesterday, why did he get peeved when asked if he were taking a double course?

WHAT
caused a youth clad in pyjamas and a sweater coat to hide in the telephone booth at theological college Monday at 11.30 p.m.? Will he take a chance like that again?

WHAT are the qualities inherent in the Statutes of Canada so soothing to hysterical nerves?

AND
who are the students in Law who found them so, one evening?

AND
who are the students in Law who found them so, one evening?

WHO
is the Sophomore who is in fear and trembling lest her "friends" play "eggs" at the Sing?

WHO
is the 4th Year Dental student who has such difficulty in recognizing teeth and will the patient come back?

THE GAME.

It doesn't make a lot of difference where you come from.

Or matter if your money rates you par; Whether you are Greek or Jew, What your friends or family do— These are not the things that make you what you are.

You might come from out the desert or the city; Your purse may be as empty as a sieve. I won't ask you what your creed, What your pedigree or breed, The thing I want to know is how you live.

After all, a man's religion is his action; His church and creed are but his daily strife. So, a win or loss at Fame, I will think you just the same, If you play your very best, my friend, at Life.
